Majestic moment

Kate, six, meets the Queen

by Peter Cordwell

SIX-year-old Kate Kabengela will never forget the moment she starred at the RHS Chelsea Flower Show - and shared top billing with Her Majesty the Queen!

The Charlton Manor pupil went with her headteacher to represent the school after the broad beans they grew took them to the world-famous event. And Kate was given the honour presenting the Queen with a beautiful posy of sweet pea, lily of the valley and rocket freshly picked that morning. The school in Indus Road achieved what many gardeners would see as the highlight of their horticultural careers. Headteacher Tim Baker told GT: "Having our broad beans displayed alongside the work of some of the world's top garden designers is a huge achievement - and meeting the queen was a once-in-a-life time opportunity."

'Molly'!

IMPROVING the quality and ease of access to care close to you and in your community is an absolute priority for NHS Greenwich. Over the past year you may have noticed increases in GP opening hours and numbers of local GP-led and walk-in clinics. All these changes are aimed at making it easier for you and your family to access primary care facilities when you need them - without having to go too far out of your way or endure unnecessary waiting times. Now we're bringing primary care services even closer to you and in a way that hopefully is easier to fit in around your busy and complex lives. We're doing this with a specialised mobile healthcare unit. Or Molly, as her driver likes to call her. The mobile healthcare unit provides same day GP and nurse NHS service to you at your convenience. It parks up at three regular spots in supermarket car parks and depots across the borough at regular times and days each week. The aim is to help you to fit your healthcare needs around doing the shopping, travelling to and from work, or performing other routine tasks. By making it easier to access immediate care, we want to reduce illness and improve people's quality and length of life in the borough. The mobile health unit is providing a wide range of early diagnosis services, including smear tests, Chlamydia testing and health MOT checks on blood pressure, weight and blood glucose - all aimed at spotting illnesses or risk factors before they have the chance to escalate. You do not need to register to access all these services. If you are registered elsewhere with another GP practice, we will ensure they receive information about the care we have given you so your medical records are updated. The timetable for the mobile unit is Mondays 8am-1pm Birchmere Depot (Eastern Way, Thamesmead); 1.30pm - 6pm Sainsbury's (Bugsby's Way, Charlton); and Fridays 9am-6pm Asda (Bugsby's Way, Charlton).

Get help on Working Tax Credit

THE way that help with childcare costs is paid through Working Tax Credit (WTC) is being simplified. Changes in the system mean that more families will be able to get help towards fixed period childcare costs (for example during the school holidays). This will give families the extra help when they need it, instead of costs being spread out over 12 months.

WTC provides help for working families towards the cost of childcare while they work. You can get it if you are a lone parent or a couple and you both work for 16 or more hours a week (or where one of you works and the other cannot work because of ill-health). The childcare costs must be "approved".

Contact the Tax Credits Office if you already get WTC but don't receive help towards your childcare costs. If you don't already get WTC you may be able to claim now even if you could not previously get help.

To claim tax credits call the Tax Credits Helpline on 0845 300 3900 (or 0845 300 3909 for textphone users).

You may also get extra help towards your rent and Council Tax if you are paying for approved childcare.

Many working families miss out on extra help because they don't know they can claim.

If you would like to check if you are claiming all your benefits contact the council's Welfare Rights Service for a free check on 020-8921 6375 (18001 020 8921 4900 for textphone users). Or visit the council website www.greenwich.gov.uk and select 'Benefits and Grants' for more information or to contact the team using an online enquiry form. You can contact Greenwich Families Information Service for more information about childcare. ## Dream teas

Pupils share thoughts on the future with OAPs

by Peter Cordwell

IT was a dream occasion when Year 6 pupils from Christ Church primary school invited a local group of senior citizens in for afternoon tea.

There followed a fabulous couple of hours of entertainment as the young people performed their poems for the guests at the school in Commerell Street.

Then they shared their dreams, their ambitions for the future, and the visitors really enjoyed listening to the children with their lives in front of them.

"The children's comments made me smile!" said John Atkins as he listened to a child share his dreams of becoming a rapper and having a wife and at least four children!

The children served afternoon tea for their guests and were complimented for their exceptional manners. "The Year 6 children treated us with great courtesy and respect," smiled Anne Webb.

The children asked questions about life in Greenwich and how the local area has changed over the years.

"It was great to see the children and their older visitors sharing their

GETTING TO KNOW YOU: tea and empathy between local residents and pupils - and (below) Reece, 11, reads his poem experiences, enjoying each other's company, and learning from each other," said head of school Anne Cooper.

The afternoon's entertainments will form part of a CD being produced by Tony McTurk and Tim Sutton, a soundtrack of older people's voices in the area.

The CD will have accompanying images and include recorded walks as it unveils the stories of everyday lives. Entitled 'Soundwave', it is being produced in conjunction with Stream Arts and will be available from the middle of July.

"The afternoon was a great success and we are planning to make this a regular event. It was a fabulous experience for the children," said Anne Cooper.

A final word from one of the guests: "I've had more fun than the children!" said smiling Tom Rose.

Unforgettable!

Allan looks back on great year in chain

by Dick Townsend-Smith

WITH the last few hours of his year in office ticking away, Greenwich's outgoing Mayor Allan MacCarthy was busy in his parlour, clearing out his in-tray and writing his last few official letters.

The new Mayor, Cllr Barbara Barwick, was inaugurated the following evening. A full report on her hopes and plans for the coming year will appear in GT next week.

What an action-packed year it was for Cllr MacCarthy. He accepted about 600 invitations to attend events. He met thousands of Greenwich residents, of all ages. He also raised more than £30,000 to be split between his chosen charities - Macmillan Cancer Support, Volunteer Centre Greenwich, and Greenwich Mencap.

"It's been a special and real privilege for me in the year of the announcement of our royal borough status, which is a very rare and special honour," he said.

Cllr MacCarthy, who was born in Woolwich, has a wealth of anecdotes - and at least two of them put him in a spot of danger. "Everyone seems to know about the time I attended the 100th birthday party for a lady called Daisy at a care home in Kidbrooke," he said. "As she went to cut her cake, she swung the large knife she had been given to use. In her excitement it came hurtling towards me and I only just managed to get out the way in time, while all the other ladies looked at me in some surprise.

"Then a group of toddlers tried to get me with their teddy bears! It was at Charlton House which had a teddy bears' picnic on the lawn. Two little boys started hitting me with their teddies, and then all the others joined in. I couldn't stand up in case I trod on one of them.

"I was wearing the mayoral chain, which is very valuable, and I was really worried about it getting damaged. I don't know what the insurance company would have said about a claim that said the damage was caused by three-year-olds wielding teddy bears.

"I've met lots of community groups throughout the borough - so much happens that simply wouldn't happen without all the volunteers we have.

"I've met disabled children playing cricket on tabletops, and a couple of former authorities to check that shopkeepers aren't selling anything they shouldn't to under-age youngsters.

"I was also very impressed by the Archway project in Abbey Wood, which is doing so much to help young people."

Children can sometimes come out with questions hit you with the speed of a torpedo. Cllr MacCarthy said: "They've asked me if I live in a palace, and one group asked me what I thought I could do better if I was mayor again.

"Actually, I would like to have organised visits from all the primary schools to the Town Hall, with the aid of knowledgeable volunteers to show them the mayor's insignia and how the council works.

"I've learnt so many things. We have so much history, particularly in Woolwich. I discovered the RAF seems to have had its early roots in the Woolwich Arsenal - and the first deep-sea dive into the Thames took place in Woolwich in 17th Century.

"I've been very proud to represent Greenwich. It's a very special place, with very special people. My thanks go to my support team - Alison Payne, Gina Sinclair and Terry Pollard - who did a great job for me.

"I would also like to wish Barbara, and Fred, her consort, every good fortune for the year ahead."

Benefit cheat jailed for 18 months

A BENEFIT cheat has been jailed for 18 months at Maidstone Crown Court. It's the result of the latest joint operation led by Greenwich Council, the police and the Department for Work and Pensions. Thirty-nine-year-old single mother Moriam Ologunro from Thamesmead had fraudulently obtained about £99,000 over a ten-year period. Ms Ologunro, also known as Ms Susan Ali, was arrested and charged with the use of false documents. An investigation showed she had obtained employment with a NHS Trust in Kent from 1999 and used a false birth certificate and false passport in support of a criminal records check.

Further enquiries by Greenwich Council found that Ms Ologunro had claimed income support, housing and Council Tax benefit for over ten years that she was employed with the NHS Trust, under the false name of Ms Ali.

Cllr Maureen O'Mara, Greenwich Council's cabinet member for community safety, said: "This sends a strong message to people committing fraud in that if you break the law, we will find you and prosecute you.

"It's also a really positive step in ensuring the right people receive the right benefit."

An unnecessary response

AS a resident of Greenwich and a big Charlton fan I'd just like to register my disgust at how the police behaved in the aftermath of the recent play-off clash at The Valley. An altercation - if you could call it that - occurred when a single Charlton fan engaged in banter with some Swindon fans on Charlton Church Lane. There was no riot or possible prospect of a physical confrontation in the incident, yet it provoked an exaggerated and unnecessary response from the police. The incident occurred as people were queuing outside the local shop and two mounted officers used their horses to push, jostle and disperse the 20 or so people present in an attempt to reach the offending fan, who had already moved off. I think that using police horses as weapons against completely innocent people with no warning is an ugly abuse of power. Someone was actually hit on the back of the head by the horse as it pushed through.

Frank Daniels, Charlton

• A CROWD of Charlton fans had congregated outside an off licence at the junction of Floyd Road and Charlton Church Lane. Swindon fans would have had to walk past the crowd in order to reach Charlton station. Officers were asked to disperse the crowd in order to avoid possible disorder. Mounted Branch officers would have warned the crowd before using their horses to disperse it.

Police in Greenwich

Hill start please

WITH regard to the campaign to secure a DLR extension to Eltham, can it have a station at the bottom of the western side of Shooters Hill - which would be on the way from Woolwich? Eltham, Kidbrooke and Abbey Wood all have rail, while Shooters Hill has no rail and limited bus services.

S. Welsh, Shooters Hill

• GREAT to see the council still pushing the case for Crossrail to come to Woolwich and Abbey Wood. I think we all agree that cutbacks are inevitable with the current state of finances worldwide. But Crossrail brings so many benefits in terms of reducing carbon footprints and opening up markets it would be madness to cutback in this area.

Help us trace Albert's relatives

BBC Inside Out North West is doing an investigation into an air crash which happened in the 1940s. We are trying to trace the pilot's living relatives. The RAF pilot's name was Albert Edward Roy Fairman. His birth was registered at Southwark Nov/Dec 1921 and he died in an air crash in Wroughton in 1945. His father was Albert Francis Fairman and his mother was Lily Mildred Fairman (nee Ketley). They married in Camberwell in 1919 and went on to be the proprietors of the Angerstein Hotel, Woolwich Road, Greenwich. The pilot married Grace Varney in May/June, 1942. The marriage was registered at Finsbury. Apparently they had a child but I cannot find any more details on this.

THERE'S one answer to vicious or threatening dogs - muzzle them! That's the only and simple and obvious answer. With a muzzle they can't bite. They used to muzzle greyhounds! There used to be public notices on the common about that, so why can't they make the same sort of law now?

Locals get double the fun at community events

THERE'S double the fun at this summer's programme of Great Get Togethers.

Each of the council's three community engagement events will be linked up with another community happening creating a unique day out for each area.

The Get Togethers will feature scores of free attractions and information stalls. The annual events are a chance for the council to link up with local people and organisations across the borough and a chance for local people to give feedback on local issues through the ever popular Talk Café where the council is also recruiting people for its new online consultation panel.

On June 13 the Eltham Great Get Together joins forces with the Kidbrooke Cluster Family

Fun Day.

The annual fun day, run by a group of schools in the area, takes place at the Samuel Montagu Youth Centre in Broadwalk, Kidbrooke.

This year's bigger action-packed day runs from 11am to 4pm.

Attractions include a live music stage with performances by local youngsters and roving entertainers. There'll be sports coaching, Charlton Athletic Community Trust's inflatable football pitch, and an open air boxing show.

Head for the Healthy Living zone, join in children's craft workshops and meet all sorts of small farmyard animals at the petting zoo.

For the more daring there'll be stunt bike displays, Tag Rugby, and Parkour or free-running where participants negotiate obstacles by jumping and climbing.

A cheer leading display, hoola hoop workshop, fun science demonstrations, and children's party makeover sessions are also on the programme along with food and craft stalls and dozens of community and local service information stalls.

Andy Day from CBeebies will make a guest visit, and visitors can have their say on local issues in the Talk Café over a free tea or coffee.

Later in the month the Royal Artillery Black Knights parachute display team perform at the Woolwich GGT held alongside Armed Forces Day on June 26 at the Royal Artillery Barracks.

The giant South African community choir Mbawula break into song at the Charlton Great Get Together in Charlton Park on July 10.

Jobs advice day for carers

A special support day has been organised for carers who are working and those who may be looking for work.

The Carers Employment and Advisory Morning takes place in Woolwich Town Hall from 10am to 1pm on Thursday June 17. It's aimed at the borough's 19,000 carers, who are looking after a disabled or ill partner, child, parent, other relative or friend. The morning's activities will include a range of stalls offering information and advice on a number of topics including employment rights and skills for carers, general health and wellbeing.

There'll also be a chance to enjoy hand and shoulder massages and some light refreshments.

The event has been organised by Greenwich Council with support from Oxleas NHS, Jobcentre Plus and Crossroads. It coincides with the tenth anniversary of Carer's Week, which takes place from June 14-20.

The theme for this year's Carer's Week is 'A Life of my Own', designed to encourage carers to tell the council what they can do to support them in their own lives while they care for others.

The borough's new Mayor Cllr Barbara Barwick, and Cllr Peter Kotz, the cabinet member for health, adults and older people, will be on hand to address attendees. Cllr Kotz said: "We are delighted we are able to offer this event as part of National Carer's Week. With so many carers in the borough selflessly looking after others, this is an opportunity for them to voice their views as well as to get advice and information on a range of topics that will help them in the long-term. The day will also offer a fun and relaxing side with hand and shoulder massages available and I would like to encourage as many carers as possible to attend and look forward to seeing them on the day."

Good day...sunshine!

Horn Park Friends and 200 others enjoy a great day out

IF the sun shines on the righteous, Horn Park Friends must be getting something right - and their achievements in recent years suggest the same.

The Friends - helped every inch of the way by the Horn Park Forum - can point to the popular outdoor gym as a big plus on the joint cv, and the ever-so-popular B15 bus that snakes around the estate and surrounding area is due in no small way to the standard of courteous campaigning you get in the Lee area.

So it was that the hot sun shone down on Horn Park Friends' family fun day on Saturday afternoon, May 22.

Toddlers with faces painted turned somersaults on the bouncy castle, older lads and lasses clambered safely up the

by Peter Cordwell

climbing wall under expert tuition and the not-so-young ventured into their inner self via the slow-motion movements of Tai Chi in the mini-arena.

Friends' secretary Brenda Williams looked on with barely-concealed pride and satisfaction with newly-re-elected Eltham MP Clive Efford as some 200 locals did what it said on the leaflet.

"The feedback was that people really enjoyed themselves," said Brenda. "The local Safer Neighbourhoods Team was there and I think it was really appreciated. It's great to have this kind of profile so that people can have a chat about little issues or some greater concerns.

"And the council's parks department are great as well. I think they're wonderful. They help us so much and this year they helped us get the climbing wall, with the money coming out of our sustainability grant.

"A big part of our job is to improve healthy and fitness across the age groups. There are about 30 young people here on Monday and Thursday evenings from 6-7 for football training with Charlton Athletic's community trust, and the outdoor gym is used by everyone from dog walkers to mums who can see their children in the playground opposite."

The friends group lost long-standing chair Frances Walker last year and the Great Outdoor Gym Company - based in Peckham - provided a plaque in the park in her memory.

"Frances did a tremendous amount of hard work and our job now is to get some younger people in because you can't leave this lovely little oasis in Lee to a load of old fogies!" said Brenda. "Parks have a natural way of fostering community spirit and that's why friends' groups are so important."

Feast of fun

Estate locals unite to plan for the future

by Pat Greenwood

A third Barnfield Community Feast attracted hundreds of residents, young and old, from all over the Woolwich estate.

The event - now an established favourite - is funded by 'Well London', a programme backed by the Big Lottery which works with communities across the capital to improve health and well-being. In addition, the Barnfield feasts of fun and information are backed by NHS Greenwich and Greenwich Council.

Special guests who popped into the party on May 22 included Greenwich and Woolwich MP Nick Raynsford.

The event was also an opportunity for the council's local community wardens environmental teams to spend a dedicated 12 hours on the 1930s estate, meeting residents and doing a 'deep clean' and some landscaping.

This special one-day initiative - part of the nationwide 'Capital CleanUp' scheme - also involved community safety officers and local police, as well as the 'Community PayBack' scheme backed by the London Probation Service.

The latest news at the feast was that 'Groundwork', London's community environmental charity and a Well London partner organisation, has successfully secured £100,000 of the £150,000 needed to carry out a landscape on the estate.

If all goes well, the charity will work with residents to revitalise the old green-mounded play area between some of the flats.

The Community Feast included a young people's talent show, and the music and drama ran non-stop on the sound-stage from 1pm until 6pm. It was principally co-ordinated by Barnfield graduate and film-maker Nancy Noronha, 22, together with Adelaide Mendy, also 22, and their 20-year-old friend Martha Nabunjo.

The three Well London Ambassadors are planning to start up youth workshops in the summer holidays, as well as help preparing for exams, at the nearby Trinity Church Community Centre.

Meanwhile, New Global Image, another Well London partner organisation, is working with Barnfield residents from 13 to 60 plus, creating workshops and discussions to encourage diversity and equal opportunity.

And a women's group which is another Well London project, has now landed sufficient funding to organise a flower-arranging group, a computer workshop, and a trip to the seaside, as well as taking a look at the possibilities of upgrading the estate's old community centre behind the Barnfield Project.

by Pat Greenwood

PASSIONATE reader turned popular author Vestal McIntyre is right here in Greenwich, every day, to share his love and his knowledge of books with us.

The 38-year-old American - whose hardback novel 'Lake Overturn' is published by Harper Collins in paperback this month - is one of the team of booksellers in Waterstone's, by the entrance to the Cutty Sark DLR station in the town centre.

When Vestal's not working in the shop, he's at home in Blackheath, writing with the windows open. "One of the first things I noticed coming to live over here was the sounds of all the different birds. They're beautiful," said the man, originally from Idaho, who was working as a bistro-waiter in New York not so long ago.

"I used to live in a tiny apartment in a narrow street in the city - so I had to 'escape' to a cabin in the pinewoods in upstate New York to write. Yes, there was the scent of the trees and the wind - and the racoons used to come right up to my door - but, in London, there is just so much more green space. You're 'in the city' but you've got the best of both worlds.

"There's beautiful Greenwich Park to cycle through - and always a lovely, quiet park bench to go to when you're thinking." Vestal, whose first book - a collection of short stories called 'You Are Not the One' - was published by Harper Collins in the UK in 2004, is now settled in Greenwich with his English partner.

Me & my borough

He loves his day-to-day life as a bookseller, and his favourite times are when bookclub organisers come into the shop and ask for advice on what to include on their reading list. "There are a lot of bookclubs in this area," he said. "And we have a free in-store bookclub here too at Waterstone's which meets once a month on Wednesday evenings, and everyone is welcome."

"Discussions are chaired by Gloria, who works here in the store. She's a voracious reader and she knows her stuff! We have fliers carrying this month's bookclub selection on the counter. Everyone who has read the book just shows up, has a glass of wine and chats it up. "Readers will have come at the book from different perspectives, so they tend to take sides and hash it all out!"

Vestal, who has worked in the store for over 18 months, says it's always reasonably busy - despite the recession. "We have the tourist section and the maritime section right at the front to attract any visitors to Greenwich," he said. "But we have lots of local customers too. It seems to me they really like their literary fiction - as opposed to the popular blockbusters - much more than customers in many other bookstores.

"Literary fiction is my taste too - so I'm really happy to help if they ask for advice.

I might say, 'If you liked that, why not try this?' If I get the chance, I like to take people on a little tour of all my favourite books."

Vestal was brought up in a small community back in Idaho, and his own writing has tended to focus on that kind of theme so far. 'Lake Overturn' revolves around a pair of single mothers and their sons. He's almost finished his third book - "and I'm thinking about a couple of others too," he told GT.

"My very first novel was rejected by everyone - but I've never stopped writing!"

Woolwich pupils win quiz challenge

MORDEN MOUNT Micro-Stars are the tops when it comes to the appliance of Science!

A team of 11-year-olds from the primary school in Lewisham Road took on nine other bunches of boffin Year 6s from schools as far away as Croydon in a quick-fire quiz - and WON.

The fingers-on-the-buzzers-style contest was held at the Firepower! Museum on the Royal Arsenal site at Woolwich as part of its third annual schools' event for National Science and Engineering Week.

And the multi-choice questions were around a range of topics including Earth, endangered species, and the planets.

by Pat Greenwood

GT went into the school to meet science champs Esosa Joe-Oshodi, Laurence Hoyte, and Krishtina Amatya, who took on the rest of the schools, along with their 11-year-old boffin-buddy Faustina Lawmann.

Esosa admitted: "We didn't get all the questions right. For instance, we said foxes would not be out-of-place in woodland, when the answer was 'owls'."

But Krishtina said: "We did pick the right option for 'How tall is the Empire State Building?'"

"And we weren't really that nervous - because we had the support of all of Year 6 who came with us, and they kept on cheering!"

Firepower! Education Manager Dawn Devereux and her team organised the event for primary schools across two days - 'Science Boffins' first, followed by a new feature called 'Horrible Medicine', where doctors and medical students from King's College, London, came and helped.

Laurence, 11, said the Morden Mount pupils enjoyed the little explosion in a water-tank demonstration during the science-day - and how they all got to take home some gloopy green-slime which one of the demonstrators made for them.

The school's science teacher Natasha Tilley told us: "We start the subject right from the smaller children when the nursery looks at wildlife and habitats. By Years 5 and 6 there's a real 'push' in Science here, and every Wednesday afternoon they do lots of group-work.

"For instance, we've recently looked at sound, pitch and volume, and also how the size of a parachute will affect the speed it falls to the ground."

Morden Mount headteacher Mary Jackson told the whole-school assembly: "It's wonderful that we have won this trophy, and that these children represented our school so well."

Citing team-work as the key to their success she added: "In school we always talk about 'working together' and 'helping each other'".

History clues to ghost mysteries

SEVERAL hundred visitors flocked to the Royal Arsenal Heritage Quarter for a community history day last month. The event was jointly hosted by Firepower, the Royal Artillery Museum and the Greenwich Heritage Centre on May 15. The day of heritage activities focused on the unique history of the Royal Arsenal site and the people who lived and worked in and around Woolwich. There were rare films of Woolwich in the 1960s, displays of historical photos, family history experts and children's activities. Popular attractions included the guided walks of the Arsenal and an evening ghost walk. Organisers' spokesman Frank Crosby said: "This was a most successful community event. The area was busy from 10.30 in the morning right through to the ghost walk at 10pm and people were keen to learn about the spooky experiences that people continue to have in the area. The site has been used for rather dangerous industrial uses for almost 500 years and research shows that there were a lot of tragedies suffered over the years creating the right breeding ground for ghosts!"

The next community history day is from 10.30am to 4.30pm on Saturday, October 23.

Cleaned up! Correction

IN the May 11 issue we published details of inspections carried out by independent surveyors WYG Environment in to the cleanliness of 300 local streets. Our report stated that the figures we detailed were from 2009/10. We should have stated that the figures were taken from 300 inspections of Greenwich streets over a two-week period in April 2010. Greenwich Time would like to apologise for this error. These provisional results indicated that Greenwich's streets may be cleaner than they have been since cleanliness measurements started. The inspectors found that 97% of the areas inspected passed the national standard of being 'free or relatively free' of litter.

Advert apology

IN last week's Greenwich Time we printed an advert from the three councillors in Kidbrooke and Hornfair who were elected on May 6. Greenwich Time would like to apologise for this administrative error as it runs contrary to our editorial policy, which clearly states that we can only promote corporate policies adopted by the council. Our guide to the new council on p14&15 incorrectly said the cabinet included two deputy leaders. This should have said one deputy leader.

Traders mark 25 years on art and crafts stalls

by Pat Greenwood

SILVER balloons and a unique hand-crafted clock revealed it was time to celebrate at Greenwich covered market on Friday, May 21.

The historic market, which features in records back to 1700, was first established on the cobbles on the current 'island site' in 1827.

The market started selling arts and crafts 25 years ago - which was the reason for the party last month.

There was music, workshops and demonstrations from noon, performances by schoolchildren, and speeches and the grand unveiling of the new clock-in-the-rafters.

Special guests at the unveiling ceremony included outgoing Greenwich Mayor Cllr Allan MacCarthy, as well as Greenwich and Woolwich MP Nick Raynsford, and Martin Sands, the Director of The Greenwich Hospital Estate, which manages the market.

The 25-inch English oak cube with an antique face, was made by one of the original arts and crafts stallholders Les Grayson, who is still out there every Saturday and Sunday.

Les got woodwork GCE and has been self-taught thereafter.

He told GT: "I was asked to create something which wasn't too modern - something in keeping with the age of the arts and crafts market."

The Wood craftsman/laser engraver said: "I was running a factory and a wood

CLOCK THIS: wood craftsman Les Grayson, MP Nick Raynsford, market manager Martin Sands and former mayor Allan MacCarthy admire the new market clock workshop when my dad died at the age of 58.

"At that point, I decided that 'life's too short' and came here to the market."

He recalled: "In the very early days of the arts and crafts here, the shops weren't open on Sundays, and there was loads of money being spent!

"I still enjoy it here." Another of the original stallholders who's still around is jeweller Ali Paton.

She told GT: "Twenty-five years ago I was an unemployed actress. I'd done Cinderella, parts like that, in pantos round the country.

"The only other thing I could do was make jewellery - so I decided to set up here."

Ali, whose 12-year-old daughter Robin is now a rising actress at Thomas Tallis

School, Kidbrooke, added: "It's the people who keep me in this market. They're so creative, so hardworking and loyal. I've made friends here for life!"

One of the newcomers to the arts and crafts market is cake-maker Ruby Amar from North London. Ruby first set up her stall last November, specialising in bakery that is dairy-and-eggs-free, as well as sugar-and-wheat-free.

She told GT: "I make everything on the stall from scratch. And I love Greenwich.

"Without a doubt, this is definitely one of the top markets in London. That's why I am so pleased to be a part of it."

A heart-shaped quilt made by party-revellers is going up in Greenwich covered market to celebrate the 25th birthday of the arts and crafts stalls.

The collage of everything from organza and nets to sequins and sparkles is called GASP - Greenwich Anniversary Patchwork.

It was created in an afternoon by visitors to the Silver Jubilee party.

The sewing workshop for all age-groups was organised by Greenwich-based fashion designer Libby-Rose.

She told GT: "We made a patchwork for Valentine's Day, and here's another chance for people to learn to sew - from beginners onwards - using the modern, faster electric sewing machine."

ASHBURNHAM Grove is alive with the sounds of digging and laughter one Saturday morning each month.

It's the keen volunteers from the flourishing gardening project run by the Ashburnham Triangle Association (ATA), and they're helping out at Greenwich Council's 11-place Ashburnham Residential Home for people with learning disabilities.

GT first featured them in snow-covered January, when we ran a photofeature about the work of the triangular-shaped residents' association formed roughly by Greenwich High Road, Greenwich South Street and Blackheath Hill.

We returned for the gardeners' Saturday working party late in May - and found them eagerly awaiting delivery of a BIG new piece of kit!

Local resident Sara Emanuel, the spokesperson for the volunteers, told us: "The plinth for it, paid for by the council, was prepared in the week...and a greenhouse is on its way."

The group can't wait to start growing tomatoes, peppers and cucumbers in earnest as soon as it arrives.

This groundbreaking gardening link-up started in 2008 when near-neighbours Audrey Ringrose and Sara Emanuel went over and made contact with the residential home. Since then, Sara has organised the monthly working parties. First, they filled the patio with flowers and sensory plants, and now there is a compost bin and a thriving vegetable patch.

They've recently had a major cash boost. Audrey said: "We applied for and got a grant from 'Capital Growth' of £842.30. This London-based charity supports community food-growing spaces."

Audrey added: "Nearby residents Tom and Peter have now built wooden frames to contain six raised beds for the vegetable patch. The beds can be used for growing vegetables, and seed stock of the host.

Kay Gordon, a resident with all sorts of experience between service users and volunteers, said: "Kay, who has been at the home for two

SPADEWORK: Judy and Pauline did what they're doing for Knee Hill

Knee Hill reaction!

A COUPLE of friends in Abbey Wood have realised a long-standing landscaping dream with the help of Greenwich Council. Tenants Judy Knopp and Pauline Hubbard have joined forces with their local housing office to get land in the heart of their estate on Knee Hill Crescent cleared - and available now as individual leisure plots for any interested neighbours. The long stretch of land below Judy and Pauline's windows has always lain fallow. So, a couple of years ago, - on the principal "if you don't ask you don't get" - the pair started talking to their estate officers about it. Pauline, a former professional gardener who has lived there for 52 years, told GT: "Greenwich Council said we could use it - as long as there was no expense to them."

Judy, a tenant there since 1972, said: "Council tree pruners came at the end of last year. Then they sent someone to extend our water source so we can use a hose down there, and they have also repaired a part of the wooden fence for us. "Then, just after Easter, a whole team of workers from the council's new 250-strong environmental team of people which they recruited last year spent six days here - from noon until 8pm! - clearing the land with forks and rakes. They've also cleared other areas at the back of this estate and by the main road."

Judy summed up: "We want to use Greenwich Time to say a big, big thank you to Greenwich Council for all their hard work on this for us."

Judy already has a little flower-garden at the end of the strip, and Pauline is about to get stuck in, but the rest of the newly-cleared land is up for grabs for any of the other tenants on the 96-home estate.

Judy said: "All anyone needs to do is to talk to our estate office in Eynsham Drive."

Knee Hill Crescent is in an ideal setting on the edge of London's Green Chain Walk route. Any wannabee gardeners will be working out there with the sight and sound of wood-pigeons, blue tits and magpies. "And we've even had parakeets here," said Judy.

worker Audrey Brown, told GT: "Residents have been learning to cook with the veg we get, thereby developing their life skills. For instance, we've had leek-soup - and the potatoes are excellent roasters!"

Audrey Ringrose said: "A few weeks ago we saw a row of lovely tiny daffodils nodding against a grim bare brick wall. We'd trenched them in for the winter and forgotten where we'd put them!"

The volunteers have recently planted tiny plum and apple trees, they have plans for everything from parsnips and spinach to sweetcorn, squash, rhubarb and Jerusalem artichokes, and they're busy edging some of the borders with English bamboo.

Sara summed up: "A donation of lots of compost from Thompson's garden centre on Shooters Hill has really made a difference. And, between the home and ourselves, we're such a fantastic team!"

Greenwich Council's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 187

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Council's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed.

Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to:

For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time.

For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

Band

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the council must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

1 Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, get an application form by phoning the Access and Allocations Section on 020 8921 2941. Or pick up a form from any neighbourhood office.

And there'll be a range of free events over the weekend to mark the opening of the only running centre of its kind in the borough. The new centre means fitness fanatics and runners can now get free advice on what shoe best suits their foot shape to maintain health and well-being when exercising and training. During the weekend's free fitness event health, fitness experts will be offering free blood pressure checks, exercise demonstrations and advice, to help shoppers get fit and healthy for summer from 1-5pm on both days. The free event is part of the shopping park's Spring into Summer campaign which marks the launch of only running centre of its kind in the Borough. Visit, www.greenwichshoppingpark.co.uk for further information.

Open studio
sponsors

FIVE local businesses are supporting artists who are opening their studios to the public as part of an annual showcase of their work.

The Greenwich shops are sponsoring Greenwich Open Studios now its 33rd year. The annual event promotes the work of artists living and working in the area who open their private studios for the public over two weekends.

This year's event runs over the weekends of June 12 & 13 and June 19 & 20 when artists will display and sell a range of work including paintings, photography and jewellery from 11am to 6pm.

The local arts festival is being supported by four local food shops - The Cheeseboard, The Creaky Shed greengrocers, Drings the butchers and The Fishmonger - who have joined local printer SBS Printing in sponsoring this year's Open Studios leaflet.

"This is an exciting development. We are proud that such well-known businesses in the centre of Greenwich have agreed to sponsor our Open Studios. It is a confirmation of Greenwich Open Studios' reputation as the pre-eminent studios event in Greenwich," said open studios convener, Maggie Hughes.

Football friends
Pitch fever unites youth teams

by Hilary Bryan

PUPILS from Charlton Manor primary school celebrated a double victory when both their A and B teams came top in a community football league.

More than 200 children and adults came together for the final of the Charlton Triangle Football League last month.

Scores of youngsters from nine schools in Charlton and surrounding areas have been battling it out for the top prize since the beginning of the year.

Games have taken place on Friday afternoons at the Meridian Sports Ground in Charlton.

The league was sponsored by housing association Charlton Triangle Homes, and organised by Ed Price, PE Coordinator for Charlton Manor School with support from Charlton Athletic Football Club.

It was created to bring local primaries together in some friendly competition and to forge links between children from different schools and neighbourhoods. The league has been sponsored by Charlton Triangle Homes for three years which has covered the cost of pitch hire, referees, and prizes for the end of season presentation.

Medals were presented to each child and trophies to the winners by Charlton youth player Kane Rice last month.

The final results for both the A & B teams were: A League, Charlton Manor School, 1st; 2nd St Mary

GOLDEN GLORY: Charlton Manor's Keiron Morgan, 11 celebrates their win with other team members, left, team mate Nabil Awan, also 11, defends with a header Magdalene 2nd; Cherry Orchard 3rd. B League, Charlton Manor School 1st; Cardwell Primary School 2nd; Woodhill 3rd.

Charlton Manor's PE coordinator Ed Price said: "It's been a real joy running this league again. Everyone is looking forward to the next exciting season and to have our A & B teams win both the leagues is wonderful which has made the whole school very proud - well done!"

Andrew Kimmance, director of Charlton Triangle

Homes who attended the final game, said: "We are very pleased to have sponsored this league for the third year. It has been wonderful to see the community from various areas from around the borough coming together throughout this tournament and celebrating as one. Well done to all the young players for showing true passion for the game and respect for each other. Lastly a big thanks to Ed for all his hard work and to Charlton Athletic for their support too."

We're the tops for team work

YOUNG footballers have shown what real teamwork means after climbing from the bottom of a league to promotion in just one season. Under tens in the Walpole Wanderers were bottom of the SELKENT league after winning just two out of ten games during the autumn season. Now the 15-strong team is facing promotion to the B league at the end of their spring season. The group of nine and ten-year-olds from the Walpole Estate in Woolwich received trophies from outgoing mayor Alan MacCarthy at a presentation ceremony last month. Youngsters got together for a summer holiday football course on the 87-home estate and it proved so popular that organisers decided to form a community football team.

The 6-week football course was run by coaching organisation Tinyballers and funded by the Woolwich Riverside Sure Start programme.

One of the coaches, who works at a local school, agreed to run regular training sessions and signed them up to the SELKENT league. The team was also supported by the Walpole Estate Management Board which sponsored their boots, shin pads and gloves and now Sure Start is funding a new kit for the youngsters. Board member Jon Payne said: "They have done so well considering how far they've come since last year. "During the whole autumn season we won only two games and finished second from bottom but the coaches continued to work hard with the team and the new spring season brought better results. "We started off with a win and as confidence grew so did our performances - we've now ended the spring season in 3rd position which grants us promotion."

He added: "Many of these kids don't have any extra curricular activities and they head straight for the computer or the TV after school. They've learned respect, new skills and developed a sense of pride by being part of the team, and this kind of success gives the team a sense of belief that they can achieve the goals we set at the start of the season if they work together."

SINGING FOR ENGLAND:
Richie (holding ball, centre) and his friends and family

To be or not to be?..

A local musician asks the question that is on every England fan's lips ahead of the national team's World Cup showdown in South Africa

ENGLAND'S dreaming once more. The flags are out, the gloves are off and as well as talk of the country's past footballing glory, you might hear the strains of a rehashed anthem or two from the sport's musical glory days...

There is no official England World Cup song this time around, and the fact that two of footy's most enduring singalongs have been lazily reissued demonstrates the innate difficulty in penning a great football anthem.

Baddiel and Skinner's Three Lions was undoubtedly the terrace chant's finest hour, but it's been forty-four years of hurt now, and that doesn't trip off the tongue nearly as nicely as 'thirty years' does.

And it feels almost as long since John Barnes was 'rapping' over New Order's seminal World In Motion, the soundtrack to Italia '90 that has also reappeared. It's no mean feat to write a good'n, then: the tune's got to be catchy without being annoying, and too often football fans are treated like morons, spoonfed with banal lyrics.

It's not something Ant and Dec considered with the horrifyingly repetitive 'On The Ball', which only united the nation in its hatred of the horrendous tune...

But Charlton DJ Richie E Edwin hopes to unite fans on the terraces of Rustenburg, Cape Town - and back home, singing along to his terrific World Cup song, '2B or not 2B, (My England)'.

Richie told us: "For people to be chanting my song in the pubs while the world cup's on the terraces - I would be absolutely ecstatic. That's the dream, that's the passion - for people to be singing that chorus."

"The song is very much 'pumped up' - it's for the terraces, it's for the pubs, and hopefully it will do well and bring people together there." And the words of the song are not the usual bombastic call to arms - so where did the inspiration for the cryptic lyrics come from?

"I was asking a few of my friends if England were going to win the World Cup, and people were saying 'yes', 'no' and 'we're not sure'."

"Not to try and quote Shakespeare, but it's a 'To be or not to be' type of question, so I felt there should be a song that sums up that feeling of uncertainty," he added.

It's a neat idea, not to patronise the fans with empty rhetoric, but to leave the question open.

"It's for people to make up their own minds, and if you listen to the lyrics it says 'To be or not to be - you'll see', and that's where the question is asked - 'You'll see'," Richie explained.

As trepidation rises nationwide and nails are bitten to the wire in expectation of the national team lifting the famous trophy on July 11, the DJ is hoping to win a contest of his own.

"We're through the quarter-finals of the TalkSPORT World Cup song competition," he said as GT went to press. "And we came second in the BBC Radio 5 contest on 909." Richie wrote all the music and lyrics, which also shed light on some of the shining talents of the England squad's past.

"I thought that mentioning a few known stars in the song worked well, and I looked at focal points in this country at the moment. Everybody knows Ian Wright and Gary Lineker, but do they know the 1966 World Cup group? After Bobby Moore and Bobby Charlton people start to struggle, so I thought bring it back to mainstream, rather than keeping it on an old school vibe."

The song was released on May 17, and Richie and his family and friends are hoping the song will strike a chord across the nation.

And accompanying the physical release - which is out in HMV, the B-side is an acoustic version of the track accompanied by guitarist James Cockrane. So let's all get behind England - and get behind Richie too. All together now - "TO BE OR NOT TO BE - MY ENGLAND, THREE LIONS CLOSE TO ME..."

DON'T MISS GT'S FOUR-PAGE WORLD CUP PULL-OUT ON JUNE 8...

2012 singalongs - Hits and misses...

The Hits:

2B or not 2B - Richie E The Charlton man's effort stands out amid a sea of blinkered bravado for its unusually philosophical approach and cracking chorus. YouTube search: '2B or not 2B England'

Sing It For England - Young Stanley

A genuinely great pop song from an unlikely group of builders. Good voice and a not too rammed-down-throat chorus. With decent production this could have really gone places. Search: 'Young Stanley England' This My dear Is England - 2010 Supporters Oasis-y number sung with real passion. Chorus is a little repetitive but this could definitely catch on with fans. Search: 'This my dear is England'

Bad misses...

England Is My Home - Witchfinder

Vomit inducing drivel from a Rhydian clone who doesn't like football. More akin to The Snowman's Walking In The Air than an uplifting anthem. Search: 'witchfinder england song' Unofficial Song - Mark Chandler Mark Chandler and chum remake Christmas song with England words to bad effect. A YouTube comment sums up perfectly with: 'I've passed kidney stones less painful than this'. Search: 'chandelirious england'.

Come On Sing For England

Rank. Just rank. Lacking passion and with a drippy choir of chirpy young voices. In the video a group of 'lads' kick a football around a car park after apparently attending a wedding reception. Search: 'RoryK13 England'

FINAL SCENE

Bad to the bone

Nicolas Cage stars in Bad Lieutenant, Port Of Call New Orleans, a reboot of the 1992 film that the remake's director claims he hasn't even seen...

GERMAN New-Wave director Werner Herzog returns with a rethink of the Harvey Keitel classic, Bad Lieutenant. In the title role this time is Nicolas Cage as the corrupt and drug addled cop, Terence McDonagh, assigned to the case of a family of immigrants from Africa who are murdered in a drugs related execution. As McDonagh delves deeper, his actions spiral out of control when he trades police protection for sexual favours, steals drugs from crime scenes and attempts to balance a personal life that consists of an alcoholic father and prostitute girlfriend played by Eva Mendes.

Herzog has made a career of the psychological study of characters pushed to the margins of society in his feature films and documentaries, and the blue print created by Abel Ferrara's 1992 original is the perfect template for the German maestro. Set against the backdrop of post-hurricane Katrina New Orleans, Cage provides the perfect vehicle for Herzog's character dissection of man-out-of-control set against the unpredictability of nature, in much the same way that his classics Grizzly Man, Fitzcarraldo and Rescue Dawn achieved their acclaim. Cage himself is back to his very best, in full flow as he roller coasts from the pits of self-reflection to the manic highs of his indulgences, subtly mixing the surreal and the dark. Ably supported by an intriguing cast of Val Kilmer, Eva Mendes and rapper Xzibit, Herzog demonstrates his innate ability to extract the very best out of his actors, garnering performances from the ensemble that many may have thought beyond their capabilities. Although Port Of Call New Orleans succeeds in depicting the dichotomy of a man on the edge trying to balance 'doing the right thing' (in this case McDonagh solving his crime) with his own inner demons, it lacks the intensity and gritty realism that made the original such a cult classic. In part that's due to Harvey Keitel's performance in Ferrara's version, but also because you never really grow to loathe Cage's character. Sure, there are scenes where McDonagh's actions border on the unfathomable (pulling a gun on one of the female inhabitants at an old people's home), but he never really hits the bowels of despair and repulsion that Keitel attains in the original. Rather than feeling repulsion, you can't help but be entertained by the charismatic Cage. The movie certainly hasn't been without its controversies. Although a clear reboot of the original, Herzog has always maintained that he has never even seen the Ferrara version – which is something of a complexing claim given the obvious parallels that run through both, and the fact that their titles are the same. Indeed, it's such a contentious claim that it allegedly provoked his counterpart into wishing that the German director and cast 'burn in Hell'. But regardless of the short-comings that PoCNO may have against its predecessor, it highlights Herzog's continued ability to utilise the subjects that he puts on screen to great effect.

Second opinion...

He's Robin the rich

WHAT is it about this mythical archer who stole from the rich to give to the poor? From Errol Flynn (1938) to Kevin Costner (1991) via Disney (1973) – not to mention a BBC TV series, producers and directors inexorably return to make 'just one more film'.

The latest version of Robin Hood, directed by Ridley Scott (Alien, Thelma and Louise and Gladiator), and starring Russell Crowe and Cate Blanchett attempts to explain the man behind the legend and intriguingly, ends where previous versions begin; a prequel with sequels sure to follow.

Returning home from France, Robin finds his England under siege from three fronts – from King John (Oscar Issac), weak and insecure, resentful of his dead brother's popularity; from France, ever-treacherous and seeking to exploit John's weakness, and from the Church, greedy and un-Christian. He makes his way to Nottingham, duty bound to return a dead knight's sword to its rightful owner, Sir

SHERWOOD: Crowe as legendary bow-man

Walter of Loxley (Max von Sydow). Here, he finds his place of birth, he finds himself and he finds his love, Marion of Loxley, played by Blanchett.

The leading lady and Crowe are well matched, their romance delicate and charming. Blanchett is intriguing, sometime stunning, sometimes plain, but always in command, moving seamlessly from loyal wife to fearless warrior. Her sense of ease and grace of movement contrast with Crowe's aggression and masculinity. But, Crowe surprises: now a natural leader, now a touching husband, thoughtful and reflective in his search for who he really is.

The merry men apart – who, save for Friar Tuck (Mark Addy) lack impact and dialogue – the cast is strong; Issac, full of spite and resentful of his brother Richard; his henchman, Godfrey (Mark Strong), treacherous and disloyal; William Marshall (William Hurt) the scheming politician.

Scott's direction (supported by Crowe) is first class. The attention to detail immaculate from mediaeval castle to rural, daily life; the camerawork outstanding whether in the woods or on the beach, and the battle scenes astonishing – Scott's sense of scale knows no bounds.

Verdict:

At 140 minutes the film is a little too long and the dialogue (by Brian Helgeland), and accents leave room for improvement. But, minor gripes apart, the new Robin Hood is a rare breed – a remake not to be missed. 8/10.

Frozen out in film land

WHAT'S the point in seeing big events like wars through the eyes of a hapless teenager? Being a teenager is bad enough without having to work out what's going on outside your hormones.

And why lay it on the rest of us? Okay if you produce a masterpiece like the 'Catcher in the Rye' (which has never been filmed and never will be), but eleven times out of ten you create a no-no that falls back on every cliché in the book.

Anyone old enough to remember The Go-Between?

It was a film about some gormless kid who took letters between two upper class hoorays misbehaving themselves in the holidays. You're supposed to relate to the kid's burgeoning understanding instead of, like me, getting the raving hump.

I want to know what's in the letter, not the name of the postman.

Likewise with the much-heralded Dutch offering Winter in Wartime

GLOWE STORY: pair ride off into the snow-set

(Oorlogswinter), which has 14-year-old Michiel (Martijn Lakemeier) racing through the snow on his bicycle during the German occupation and his dad the mayor apparently in favour of town twinning plans with the opposition.

Michiel, needless to say, discovers the young RAF airman – Dirk (Mees Peijnenburg) – shot down and injured in the woods. Dirk? They must be kidding. Anyway, without giving too much of the obvious away, the plot develops with Michiel misunderstanding all he sees (as Lennon put it) and Dirk – Dirk? – trying to get away when he could have waited for the Russians, who were two streets away. Mind you, Dirk (Dirk?) had discovered Michiel's big sister Erica (another shock to the pubescent system).

The film is sumptuously shot (although they forgot to put snow on the roofs) and somehow got nominated for Oscars. They'll be winning the World Cup next.

'Special' players show how it should be played

Sharon said: "Times change though and I think we need some new blood and new ideas. In four years time it will be ten years of funding so that will be a good time to hand over the reins."

Believe that, you'll believe anything.

'France' won the U14 tournament and they were actually from France, Rowhill School. Charlton School won the Under16 tournament and received the trophy from new Mayor of Greenwich Barbara Barwick, who demonstrated some excellent heading skills herself.

Larger than life volunteer 'Coach Wayne' Blake, 48 the previous Friday, was an inexhaustible source of enthusiasm during the day. He explained: "This is what keeps me going. It makes me realise that any problems I might have are nothing. As long as these boys and girls are enjoying themselves I'm enjoying myself."

Sara Johnson, a therapist at Charlton School, told GT: "This is the first time I've been here and I think it's absolutely brilliant. It's great for the children's self-esteem."

Volunteer ref Anwar Aumjaud also summed up the day perfectly: "I worked for 35 years with people with special needs so it was only natural that I should referee today. I'm retired from the health service and this is one way of showing my appreciation for the organisers. I want to help until the day I leave this world."

Sharon's Special World Cup sets the standard for excitement AND fair play

THE really beautiful game - lacking the shirt-pulling, diving and other dubious delights of the professional variety - was played at the London Marathon Playing Fields, Shooters Hill, on Thursday, May 27.

Twenty-odd teams from all over London competed wholeheartedly but instinctively fairly for the South London Special League (SLSL) World Cup.

It was the tenth time that mini miracle worker Sharon Brokenshire opened the gates to welcome coaches and minibuses, most of them sponsored, carrying excited players to the biggest event on their soccer calendar.

They all had learning difficulties to varying degrees, but there was no difficulty in enjoying the excitement of a tournament that matches any other.

It was the tenth annual "special day" for SLSL organiser Sharon, who reckons she's got four more years left in her before it's time for "new blood" to take over. Happily, as with Sir Alex Ferguson, no-one believes her!

"We've got 14 teams in the Under14s alone," said Sharon. "We've got six in the Under16s, so about 25 altogether. It's brilliant because it makes such a great spectacle on all the pitches."

"We've got teams from two of the other host 2012 Olympic boroughs, Waltham Forest and Tower Hamlets. Top FA referee Alan Hill always comes up trumps in organising the referees for the day. That's important because it's not a namby-pamby thing but proper competitive football. We celebrate winning but we don't celebrate it at all costs.

"The council gives us tremendous support and it totally sponsors our new indoor powerchair football which is really taking off."

The Football Foundation, bowled over by Sharon's enthusiasm, have funded more of her projects than any other community project in the country, a tremendous coup for Greenwich.
